

Sketch

SE corner of trench D

Context was opened in order to trace the surrounding soil of the context, which was looser and more gritty.

The soil was primarily excavated with trowel. Soil was medium compact, but the next layer was easily traced and was recognisable by its even more compact texture and slightly darker soil. In the eastern corner it also became more clay-like. The soil was 100% sampled for flotation.

↑ 50547

cut of P. Smith

(5049) π_2

(5050) π_1

relatively high density of stones about fist size or smaller

↑ N

Scale:

$$\begin{aligned} \text{TBM} &= 1402.19 \\ \text{BS} &= 0.27 \\ \text{LoH} &= 1402.46 \\ \pi_1 &= 3.413 \approx 1399.0 \\ \pi_2 &= 3.295 \approx 1399.1 \end{aligned}$$